

Dr Sarah Frankton

Dr Sarah Frankton was appointed as Consultant in Acute Medicine with a specialist interest in Endocrinology and Diabetes at BLT in 2004 and Lead Clinician in Acute Medicine 2010. She qualified at St Bartholomew's Hospital in 1993 and completed her specialist training in Endocrinology and Diabetes in several hospitals across London including UCLH and The Hammersmith Hospital. She was awarded a MRC Training Fellowship in 2000 and completed her PhD in Thyroid Disease at the Clinical Sciences Centre, Hammersmith Hospital in 2003, winning both the British Thyroid Association Award and The British Endocrine Society Award during the course of these studies. She has written several books and chapters on Neuroendocrine Tumours (Glucagonomas). Her subspecialty interest includes Diabetes in Pregnancy and she helps to run the Antenatal Diabetes Service at The Royal London site.